

8

tropical PUNCH

Austin-based designer Elizabeth Mollen of Stone Textile found inspiration for this living room in an unusual source: her client's collection of midcentury flamingo prints. "We picked a deep-blue wall color and used that as a starting point, then pulled colors from the artwork," says Mollen. A violet rug, pale lavender upholstered sofas and a green malachite stool add to the color story, creating a subtle and sophisticated jewel-toned palette that's definitely not for the birds. stonetextilestudio.com

SEEING GREEN 9

For a flight of fancy, look no further than the Minx Wing sofa from Nathan Anthony. Featuring the same intricate diagonal tufting that made the original Minx sofa an instant classic, this new variation has a more delicate, but no less dramatic, swooping silhouette. In emerald velvet with slender brass legs, it's a perch that's sure to attract attention in any space. nafurniture.com

