

65 Thanksgiving Centerpiece Ideas That Are as Tantalizing as the Main Course

Dare we say they're gourd-eous?

FRUIT-FILLED SPECTACLE

Be a little bolder this year than you were last year by incorporating grapes in your Thanksgiving centerpiece. “I love using natural elements such as branches, greenery, draped amaranth, and fruits—especially purple grapes. The colors are so vibrant!” shares Elizabeth Mollen, lead designer at Stone Textile Studio. Her studio’s ethos revolves around “marrying the everyday with the unexpected,” so of course the oval fruits are lead actors in this sultry and very unconventional Thanksgiving tableau. Not sure what else to include? Mollen recommends “pulling from the floral” when it comes to the table’s entire color palette and selection of objects. Time to experiment!
